RE: Medical Supplies needed – How your Healthcare Science Programs can assist during the Coronavirus pandemic.

Hospitals throughout Georgia need PPE supplies during our current Coronavirus pandemic. Your healthcare science programs can make a difference in your community by volunteering to take inventory of your PPE supplies and donate them to a local healthcare provider. I suggest that you contact your local board of health office or call the closest hospital directly and offer the supplies.

Work with your local school administrators and let us know if your healthcare science program can volunteer to help with the much-needed PPE supplies. This could be a great partnership between your local school district and your hospital. We appreciate all you can do to help.
